The key to Franklin Central High School is its students. Whether they be A students, average students, or otherwise each represents their school. FCHS could not have been exactly what it was this last year without each of them. The administration, staff, and maintenance people each gave a considerable portion of their time to the future. Permit us to proceed with the keys of 1968 at FCHS.

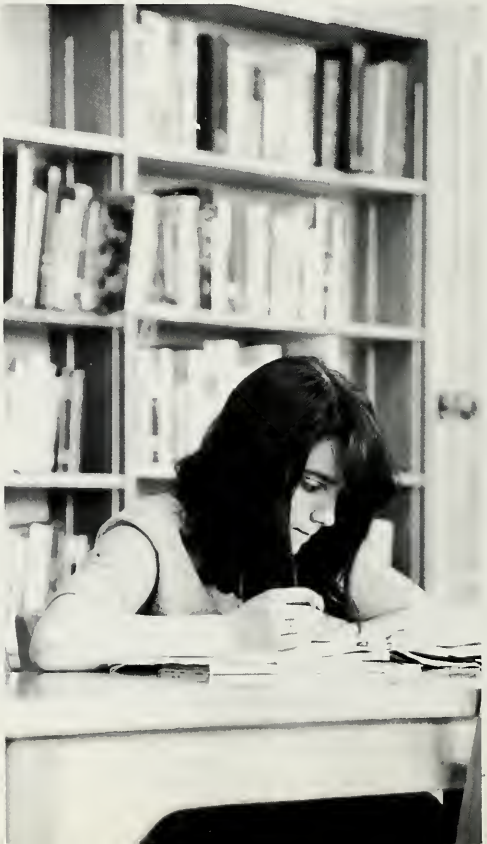
THE Key TO ANY SKIL

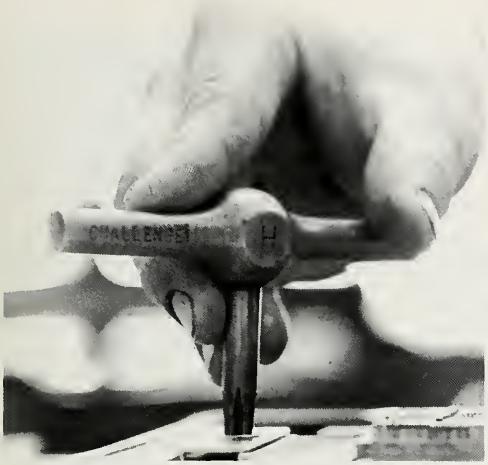
United States History Classes held the 1912 elections with students representing the candidates. The candidates the students portrayed were Teddy Roosevelt, Howard Taft, and Woodrow Wilson. Such activities give the students experience in public speaking and teamwork.

Education, Ambition, and Determination Hold

Sandy Shepherd knows that hard work and practice will help her develop a skill in shorthand that will help her achieve her future goals.

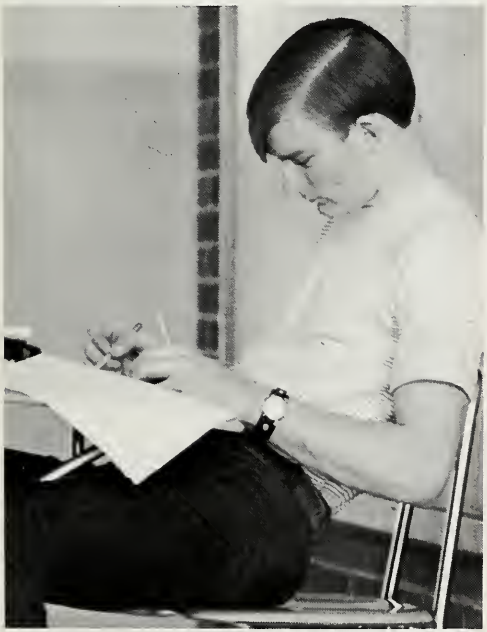


Norma Hawk learns how to use the library's resources productively. She realizes that proper use of the library will benefit her in the future.



The future of any printed material depends on its printer. The printer here uses the type to secure the type in place to insure a good copy.

the Key to the Future



Mark Perry knows that using all the time he can spare to studying will be of great importance to him in his future education. Here he is studying on the side while acting as hall monitor.

Extra Activities Unlock Doors for Students

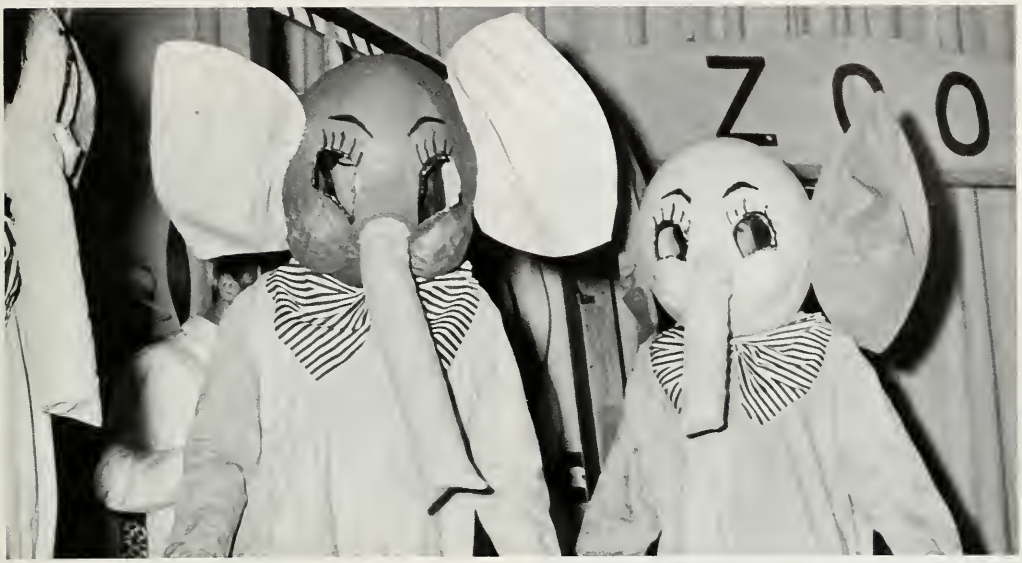
Members of the freshmen class sing joyously in the Spanish skit they presented in the Blue and White Revue.

A variety of extra activities are available to students who wish to partake in them. Students can participate in such activities as clubs, sports, and contests between classes. One of the most popular activities is the annual Blue and White Revue, which is a series of skits presented by each class. The students actually develop the skits themselves. Committees are chosen by each class to write the skit, make the scenery, and direct the actors. Class sponsors advise students on proper conduct for the stage and choosing of the cast members. The skits are presented for two nights to audiences made up of the community. Prizes are awarded to the classes for best skits, costumes, scenery and best actresses and actors.

Outside activities can help students become familiar with working in a community, which will benefit them in the future.

The junior class presented a skit which represented the "old time" showboat, in which various acts were performed.

Ross Hughes takes money for the lettermen's dance. The dance was presented after the annual winter sports awards program.



These dancing elephants are members of the sophomore class performing in the Blue and White Revue. The sophomore skit "A Trip To The Zoo" consisted of a reporter visiting with the animals of a zoo. The sophomores were happy with a second place victory for their over-all skit and a first place win for their costumes.

Seniors protest against Mother Goose in their skit in the Blue and White Revue. The protestors received first place in this skit, their second consecutive victory.

Gary Walden decorates the hall for a contest between classes. In this contest students of each class decorated an assigned hall to test for the best school spirit.

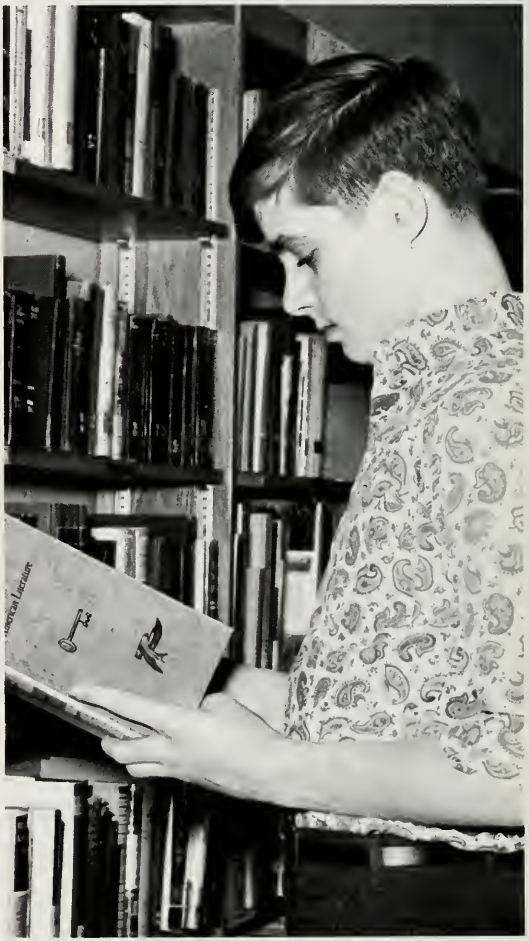
Senior scholarship winners were announced as well as those who had received those awards given by the community.

Academics

The keys to academic success at FCHS were ambition and perseverance. Good teachers and interested students were a combination which was unbeatable. English, social studies, math, science, and languages were the courses of the college prospects while many students pursued courses in home economics, industrial arts, and business. An addition to the curriculum was derivatives which benefitted all students.



New Math-Old Math Both Pursued by FC Pupils

Explaining the shortest distance between two points, Mr. Richard Harpold attempts to clarify puzzling geometry questions.

Familiar courses offered to FC students are those in the math and science departments.

Freshmen choose either Algebra or General Math while sophomores, juniors, and seniors have a variety to choose from—Algebra II, Plane Geometry, Trigonometry, or Analytical Geometry.

Bacteria experiments, chemical solutions, wind velocity, and electrical principles are familiar to all FC science students. Science fairs offer extra opportunities to the science enthusiasts while college bound pupils receive excellent first hand knowledge by using all available equipment in the science classrooms.

Close friends to Mr. Glen Eastes are his blackboard and chalk which he uses daily in his algebra classes.

Teaching for the first time in FC classrooms, Mr. Lloyd Giesler carefully oversees Cindy Bryant as she finishes work on a tricky problem.

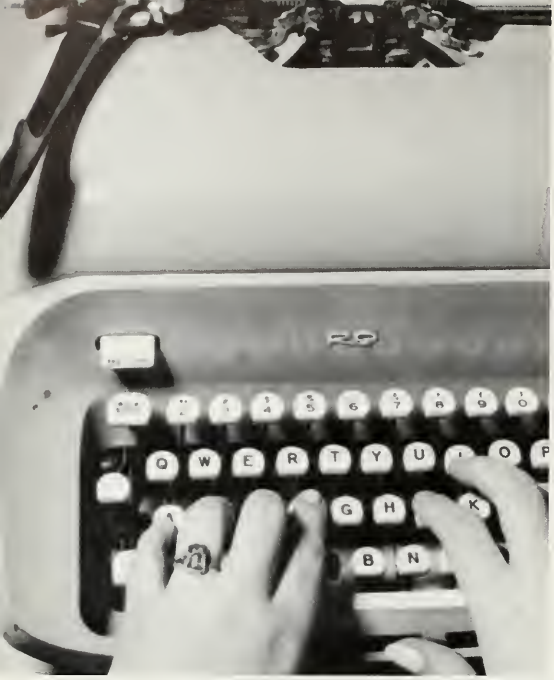
Rick Schilling and Charley Ritter experiment with a formula in chemistry.

Mr. William Ford, a newcomer to F.C. demonstrates an experiment to his Physical Science class.

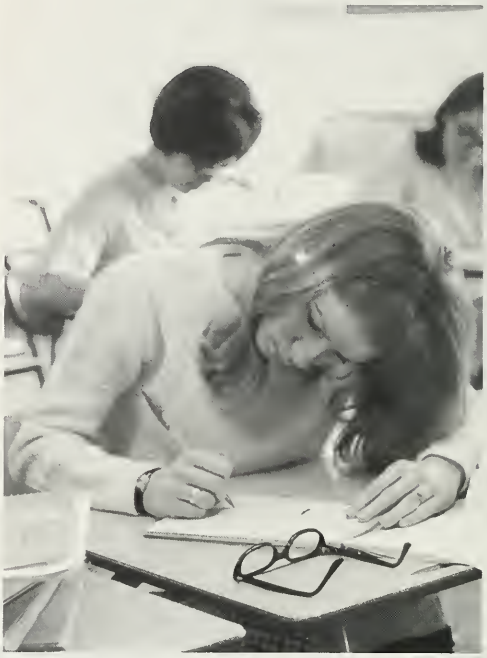
Grading exams keeps Mrs. Margaret Richwine, instructor of Chemistry and Physics, quite busy.

Mr. Al Morgan, instructor of biology and F.C.'s wrestling coach, is explaining the different elements of nature.

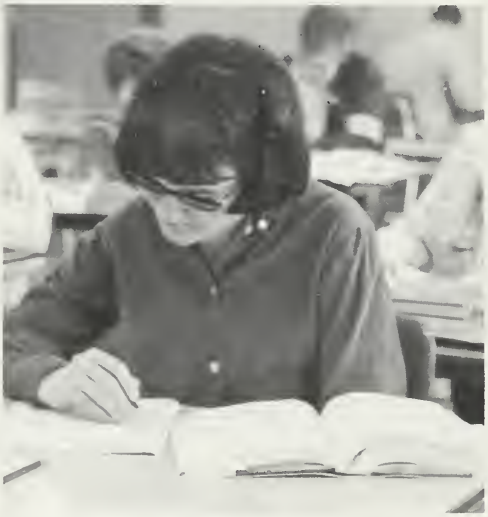
Business Career



The first year of typing includes learning the keyboard, essential parts of the machine, and care of the machine.



In shorthand I class, Sanya Stayte practices her transcribing of shorthand taught by Mrs. Wessel.



In room 115, Sandy Grey is busily at work on one of her bookkeeping problems.

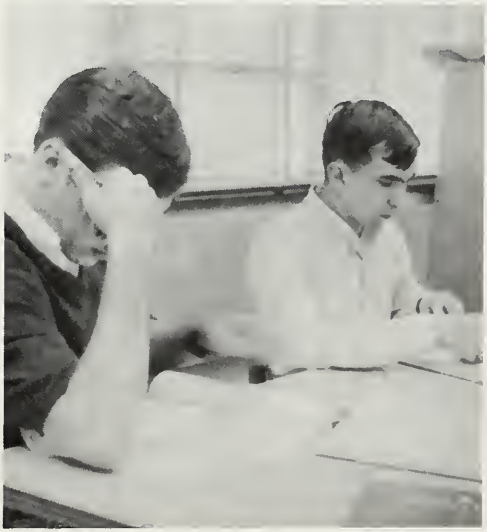
To give pupils an understanding of various business practices valuable to them as consumers of business our business courses were developed.

Secretarial training, bookkeeping, business law, office practice and shorthand are just a few of business subjects offered here at Franklin Central. If the students plan a business career, these various courses will prove to be helpful.

Holds Key to Future at Franklin Central

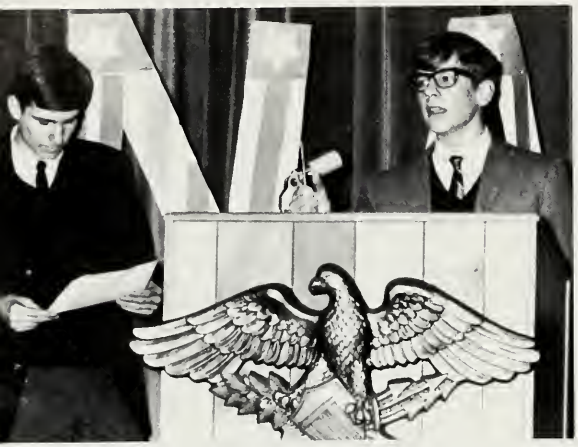
Business jobs are growing at a fantastic rate. That is why Mr. John Gruner, Mrs. Carolyn Wessel, Mrs. Helen Ernstes, Miss Melanie Burke, and Miss Bonnie Woodruff are willing at any time to help students in this field.

Francis Tawney in Secretarial training is learning to operate the voice writer machine.



Jeff Gibson, enrolled in business law, is acquainted with the basic factors of law.

Social Study Courses Make Franklin Central



Representative Ron Westby gives speech at the Nationalist convention.

To give all students the basic fundamental information on the past and present of our country's system of democracy, U.S. History and Government are required. To make these courses live, the election of 1912 is relived, all-school elections are held, and the passage of bills through a fake Congress is experienced.

If a student wishes to delve further into the social studies field, he can take World History, Economics, Political Philosophy, or Geography.

Senior Randy Gibson runs for senator at the Federalist convention.

Mr. William Clarke, experienced Government teacher, makes the course interesting for seniors.

Students Better Citizens

Mr. Larry Cline, a fine addition to our Guidance department, teaches seniors Government.

Mrs. Judith Rogers and Mr. James Hoskins confer with one another about their U.S. History classes.

Receiving applause during her mud-slinging speech, Allen is very anxious and in hopes her party will win the campaign of the 1912 election during the exciting moments of the United States History class.

English, Speech and Foreign Language Are Popular

Outside reading is expected with three book reports a semester. Spelling, composition, speaking, and listening are important phases of the grammar courses.

In the literature course, the first aim is to learn the enjoyment of literature. Composition, outside reading, spelling, and vocabulary study are also stressed.

Miss Schieldmier, student teacher from Ball State, explains the basics of English to the students at F.C.

Giving attention to her Spanish class, Miss Mary Kay Stephenson listens attentively and anxiously.

Teaching F.C. students to speak French fluently is the job of Mrs. Lucy Miner.

Giving up on her Latin phrases, Carolyn Gaier asks Mrs. Eileen Thomas to lend a helping hand.

Entertaining the students with Spanish Christmas Carols was one of the projects of F.C.'s Spanish Class.

Having laid the foundation for the industrial arts department, Mr. Wilbur Myer, Mr. William Reed, and Mr. Norman Starkey discuss future plans for instructing students in the various facets of their field.

Skills for the Future

Don Hurst and Bill Lyons ram the flask in preparation for the foundry.

Extreme care is taken by Walter McDaniel while he uses the arc welder in shop class.

The various classes of industrial arts are electricity-electronics, drafting, graphic arts, general metals, and general woods. These courses develop a power of visualization, exactness of thought and modern commercial practice in industrial arts.

Mr. Wilbur Myer, Mr. William Reed, and Mr. Norman Starkey are the instructors.

Exactness is vitally important as Gary Worthington sets the blade of the saw.

Striving for accuracy, Mike Hall makes the minor adjustments on the metal lathe to insure proper work.

Gloves and goggles are standard equipment for Dale Smith as he heats metal in the forge.

Physical Education Plays Active Role in Academics

Physical Education offers opportunities for the development of leadership, citizenship, sportsmanship, and the opportunity to learn, and to work together. The P.E. program covers a wide range of sports, games, and recreational activities. In class, skills and rules are taught that may be used in leisure time activities.

Health and Safety is a course designed to show students how to achieve and maintain better health and to improve their attitude toward it.

Mrs. Jennifer Crise, a newcomer to F.C., instructs girls physical education and health classes.

In physical education class the students have a variety of equipment to exercise on.

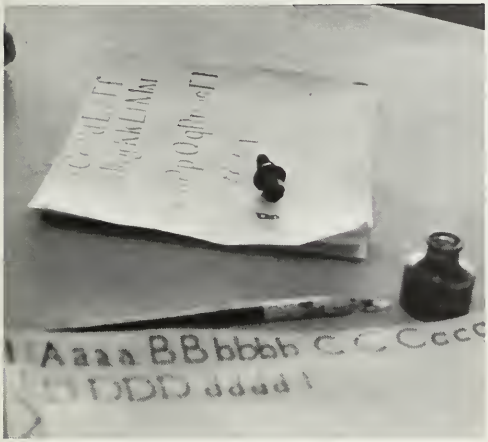
Larry Hanni, physical education instructor and athletic director, grades the sophomore boys on their balancing test.

Art Brings Out Special Abilities

Students enrolled in the art classes not only learn artistic skills and famous artists, but they also pursue careers in the field of art.

The students work with every imaginable field of art. Stenciling, figure drawing, oil painting, work in paper mache, clay, soap, and wood carving are just a small part of the many activities engaged in.

The Art Department, under the supervision of Mrs. Nancy Prickett, also provides us with decorations during Christmas and other occasions.



One of the many exciting and challenging projects covered in Art is "Lettering."

Drawing architectural designs is a favorite pastime of Donna Rigdon and Becky Hoard.

Asking Mrs. Nancy Prickett for advice, Eva Layman watches the instructions attentively.

The Dance Band, which placed second in the State Fair Stage Band Contest, plays for dances throughout central Indiana for practical applied music and enjoyment.

The Chorus practices with Mr. Ferris to increase their skill in producing music that will stimulate interest and arouse enthusiasm at programs they participate in.

Explaining a new melody to his band students, Mr. Ferris, the F.C.H.S. music expert, does this many times during the school year in preparing outstanding concerts.

The band is led by drum major Rick Schilling during many public performances during the school year.

ertainment for Community

At the annual Spring Concert the chorus, choir, and band combine to provide entertainment for the community.

Under the direction of Mr. Robert Ferris, the music department is divided into four parts: Band I-IV, in which the instrumental music student through his constant striving for fine performance, develops a keen sense of value.

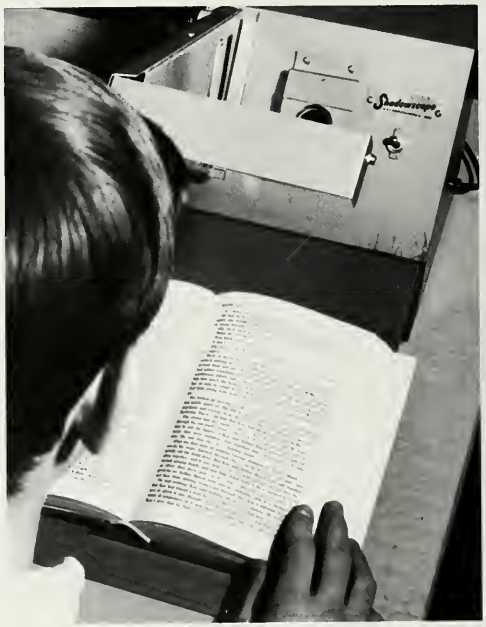
The Dance Band and F.C. Singers are a selective group of musicians and singers working together for finer performance and entertainment experience. The chorus and choir is for any student who has the ability to sing a melody without the assistance and to read a simple part song.

Two Distinct Courses Accommodate Students

Mrs. Irish checks each students progress individually. The developmental reading booths were designed to afford individual privacy to the students.

Developmental reading was established to improve and build the comprehension of the student's reading ability.

Each student having a study period is required to take six weeks of developmental reading. There is a fee of fifty cents which goes for purchasing reading materials and repairing the machines. During this period, the student reads books of his choice and gets an opportunity to advance his reading skills.



The use of the shadowscope in the Reading Laboratory classroom, enables the student to gauge his reading progress.

at Franklin Central

Tom Carnes explores globe for location of Turkey.

Making wise use of his study time, John Delk completes his workbook assignment.

Mrs. Maze, Special Education teacher, explains a point in the workbook.

Mrs. Maze works with each student in their classroom to give them the needed individualized instruction. The students are enrolled in physical education, art, music, industrial arts, home economics, and certain basic English, mathematics, and business courses to provide opportunities for better and more mature social adjustments.

Plans are being made to provide work-experience for the students to prepare them for the working society. Some students are employed in the cafeteria and library as part of their day in school.

Sports

The key to the sport's picture was underclassmen and freshmen. Football, basketball, wrestling, cross-country, baseball, track, tennis and golf were the opportunities given to FC boys and many took advantage of them. Spirit and incentive became evident as the year progressed. Students began to like the idea of winning seasons. An active G.A.A. program gave FC girls a chance to prove their skills.

We're Winners Again—Football Team Beats

Leading rusher for the flashes this year was Ross Hughes, here shown breaking a tackle during the execution of another bone-jarring play.

As usual, there was a hard summer practice before the first game.

Officials do need help some times and Dan Chaney tries to urge the ref to signal a score.

Coach Bruner gives Shaffer some words of praise and encouragement.

Jack Kirkham, a stalwart on defense, helps stop a play.

Following a spirit-building meeting in the fall, our football team began its hard summer practice sessions, leading up to its first game. Using the experience and the skill of underclassmen, our team contested with ten other gridiron foes—losing only three of the games played.

The offensive unit was lead by senior standouts Ross Hughes and Mike Shaffer with Phil Barker and Tom Dougherty anchoring the line.

Underclassmen were the stalwarts on the defensive squad with Mike Dougherty and Glen Sutherland leading the team.

In 1968 our team compiled a winning record and the prospect for a winning season next year is good.

Mr. Hanni's cross-country team this year, did not have the best of seasons, which surely caused him some consternation, but the underclassmen on the team got very valuable experience which should help us have a good year next time around. Most of the varsity squad was composed of underclassmen, led by sophomore Holly Yensel.

Undoubtedly one of the most grueling of all the sports here at Franklin Central, it was not supported by seniors. Having to rely upon underclassmen's inexperience, resulted in losing some close meets.

Everybody seems to want the basketball, or at least so it seems from this picture. Seniors Tom Dougherty and Larry Sutter give their support to Wally Olin while he fights for the ball with a couple of Chartrand High School players.

Phil Barker, winner of theis year's Plummer Award for mental attitude, gets a break on the other team.

Completely fooled by guard Greg Pool's fake, a Chartrand player goes up while Greg makes a good pass for an assist.

Reaching for the stars? No, just the normal thrashing around for a rebound.

Sophomore standout Mark McKinney fights for the ball with one of the many opponents our team beat this year.

Throughout all the action, our loyal cheerleaders urge our team on to victory.

Young Team Shoots Its Way to a Winning Season

As happened often, Tom Dougherty leaps above everybody else to control a tip.

Following the example given them by the football team, our basketball team shot its way to a winning season—our best in many years. Using unselfish teamwork, this year's young team won 13 of its contest while only dropping eight.

Our team was led in scoring by Dan McConnell; but as a whole, our team had very balanced scoring. Phil Barker, the defensive hawk of the team, kept the other players on their toes and the fans on the edge of their seats with his actions.

We should have a good team next year, too. This year's reserve team had a very good season, just losing a few close games. Also, the freshmen showed promise in their games.

Coach Knoop did a very good job this year. After a disastrous season last year, he squeezed a winning season from his boys.

In addition, our boys displayed fine showmanship and pride in themselves at the Franklin Sectionals when we played Decatur. They fought a hard battle and almost won; however, due to that funny thing called fate, the breaks did not fall by our wayside. All of the fans cheered as if to say, "We'll get them next year!"

Who said that we did not have height? Look how much taller Dan McConnell appears than Lawrence Central's players. Or is this an illusion?

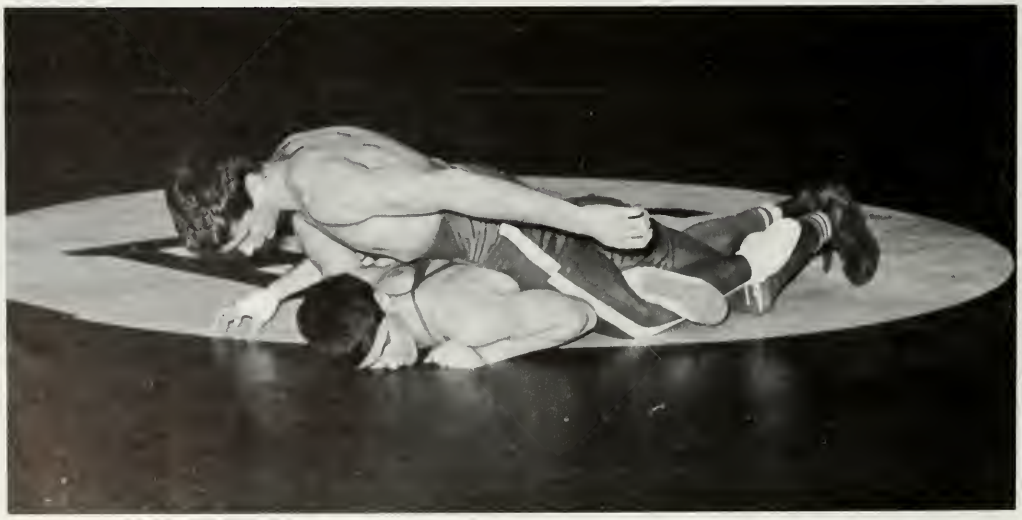
Wrestlers Take Second in State-For Second Time

John Smith, runner-up for FCHS in this year's state tournament, limbers up for another match.

Coach Morgan's wrestlers completed another highly successful season. While losing only one dual meet, they had their most success in tournament competition. Had we received a little help from fate, our record may have been even better. This year our wrestlers firmly established our reputation as a wrestling powerhouse.

Senior Dale Barnard earned unprecedented recognition for a FCHS athlete when he received the Mumby Award as the outstanding wrestler in the entire statewide tournament. In the past three years he has placed second, and won his class the other two years.

Juniors John Smith and John Denien and sophomore Hank Clouse also wrestled with great skill and success. Along with Dale they helped our team to another truly championship season.



Dale Barnard clamps his feared "figure-four" on one of the 22 opponents he whipped this year. A senior, he will leave a very large vacuum on next year's team.

Personalities

Individual faces were keys to personalities at Franklin Central. Each day of the '67-'68 school year, familiar faces could be seen talking to friends, teachers, or a new student before the start of the school day, between classes, at lunch, and after school. Sports and various organizations gave each student the chance to pursue special interests farther than classroom discussion will permit.

Hard Work for School Done by Administration

Discussing school operations and their financing, Mr. Rieble, Vice-Principal, Mr. Mason, Superintendent, and Mr. Taylor, Principal, ponder over the rising school budget. These are just a few of the duties that are fulfilled during the year.

The school board is selected by the citizens of Franklin Township to govern our school. The 1968 members who were concerned with this year's responsibilities are Howard Martin, Morris Green, Maynard Smith, Don Gleason, and Omar J. Smith.

The school board, advised by the superintendent, has various jobs such as setting policies for buildings, course changes, has the final say in policy and money matters, and so on.

The superintendent controls the spending of the budget, issues money for concerns of the schools, hiring teachers, and ordering supplies of various kinds.

Scheduling the teachers, making sure there is a substitute, and making decisions on the operation of the high school are just a few of the many jobs of the principal and vice-principal.

The varied duties of the counselors are helping students select courses, planning for the future, and planning for programs.

Without the help of those listed above, we would not be prepared to meet the happiness and unhappiness of the future. We owe you all a well-deserved thank you.

One of the more familiar faces in the Guidance office is Miss Good. Her work is mostly with curriculum, but she does give advice on schedules and future plans.

Two important people around F.C. are Mrs. Jones, the secretary, and Mrs. Hughes, who is in charge of the bookstore. Both are kept very busy during the day.

Mrs. Westby, a versatile member of Franklin Central's staff, divides her time and talents between managing the clinic and teaching family living.

In addition, each float they constructed was honored as the best in the competition.

Important decisions are always hard to make. During years before, decisions have been made concerning classes, rings, or organizations. During the last year of school, however, some of the most important decisions of one's life may be made. College will be in the future of some graduates. Jobs await others.

Certainly decisions concerning school are important, but each senior must realize one thing. Our decisions are just beginning.

For a senior, it is always a relief to get that last term paper finished and turned in. Remember how hesitant you were when you did the first one? You just knew you were doing it all wrong.

The last speech or oral report should be done with confidence and perfection. Your first one must have been a flop as scared as you were. Times have changed, however, and now you're a master at speeches. (Aren't you?)

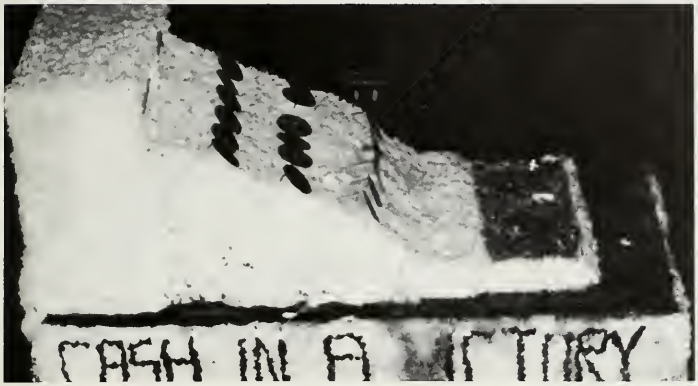
Class participation and co-operation once again pays off as 68er's "Whip the Huskies."

First Place Award Since Freshman Year



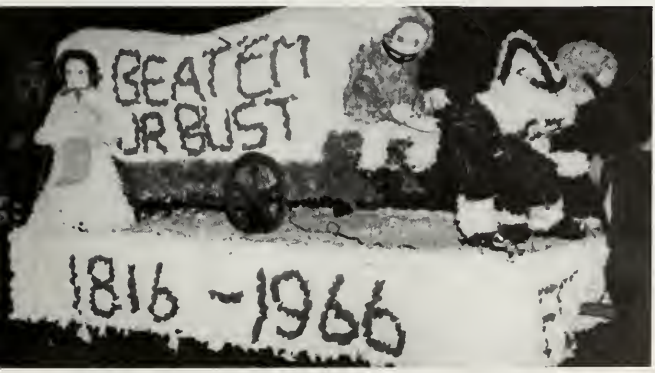
As freshmen, the class of 1968 truly cashed in a victory with their first float.

The present seniors are especially proud of one particular achievement gained by them. This group of students produced an award-winning float every year during their high school career.

It is quite evident that many long, hard hours of work went into each float. Without the help and co-operation of many students, none of these floats would have been possible.

Students like these, ones who can and do help and work willfully and sincerely, make a class as great as it is.

The sophomore float, "Play On To Victory," inspired the Flashes to win and produced a unique float for its makers.



For their junior float, the class of '68 presented "Beat 'Em Or Bust."

The members of the Senior Class of 1968 prepare for one of their last activities as a part of Franklin Central's student body.

Baccalaureate and Commencement Bring Close

Each member of the class stands ready to face his future whatever it may bring.

Reverend Lindstrom of the Southport Baptist Church reminds everyone to always hit first base.

Graduation is both an ending and a beginning. This occasion marks the end of a phase of life to which we may never return except through thousands of treasured memories. The beginning it brings is that of an inexperienced life of unforeseen happenings. Graduation is a solemn time, for it is at this time we turn. We turn to our new life with high hopes and great expectations.

We'll remember always GRADUATION DAY.

Hard work and much study pays off in scholarships for several of the seniors.

to Wonderful Year

Jana Mason delivers the farewell address to her fellow classmates. In her speech, Jana refers to the future. Of her classmates and herself she says, "We are ready."

Franklin Central's 1968 Junior-Senior Prom, "Blue Heaven", was held at the Indiana Roof. Al Cobine provided the music by which the enchanted couples danced all evening. The senior wills were read throughout the evening, adding a touch of humor to the occasion. A hush spread over the entire room as Doug Crago and Vicki Crawford were crowned King and Queen of the Prom. Jane Kitley, the 1967 Prom Queen, crowned Doug after Vic Breedlove, the 1967 King, crowned Vicki. The reigning couple then led the next dance, followed by the Prom Court and then everyone joined in. All these events made for a wonderful Prom.

After being crowned King and Queen, Doug Crago and Vicki Crawford lead the Prom Court in a dance as the first duty of their reign.

The 1967-68 school year has finally come to an end. With this year's end has come the close of our competent advisor's yearbook work. Miss Woodruff has spent six years working with yearbook staffs, helping with layouts, cropping pictures, editing pages and worrying about deadlines.

On May 22, we, the members of the 1968 FLASHBACK Staff, presented Miss Woodruff with an award for "Outstanding Service as Yearbook Advisor". Now we would like to say publicly a sincere "thank you."

To everyone who helped in anyway the 1968 FLASHBACK Staff extends a warm thanks.
